BOYS

Fremont Ross

Coach: John Elder

1995: 5-2 overall, second to Bedford in the Great Lakes League

Key losses: Jeremiah Wagner, who finished 12th in the state, and Clint Hill

Key returnees: Three seniors: Jeremiah Smith (16th in state in 1995), Kurt Snyder and Kevin Alexander. Also juniors Jake Smith, Eric Gabel and Eli Semer, sophomore Jon Framstead

Strengths: Should have some experience coming back. The team has been running since early July

Weaknesses: Whether some of the young returning letterman can step in and step up and get faster.

Outlook: "The kids are pretty optimistic ... (but) Bedford is definitely best team in GLL," coach Elder said. The team's goal is to make regionals for the third straight year.

GIRLS

Fremont Ross

Coach: Cathy Esposito

1995: Finished sixth at regionals

Key loss: Sarah Williams

Key returnees: Senior captain Monica Wood, juniors Alison Kelly, Jeanette Frontz, Molly O'Connor, Kristyn Warner, Meredith Huffman, Jamie Toeppe, sophomores Lindsay Frontz, Jeanette Frontz, freshmen Abby Cominsky, Molly Goeke and Jenny Gabel.

Strengths: Depth that coach Esposito has not had before. Great leadership, best I've ever had.

Weaknesses: Toeppe's injury, a stress fracture

Outlook: Best team coach has ever had. The top five are all capable of running 19-minute times. The team has dependable freshmen.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK

A test of endurance

News-Messenger/Andrew Morrison

JEREMIAH SMITH of Fremont Ross pulls away from the field Saturday at the Norm Bray Invitational at Walsh Trails. He finished in 17:08.

Ross's Jeremiah Smith is in 3rd cross country season

By BRIAN SPIESS
Sports editor

Cross country runner Jeremiah Smith discovered his knack for distance running on a much shorter course: a basketball court.

"I guess I discovered that I had good endurance during seventh- and eighth-grade basketball," Smith recalled Monday afternoon, just prior to taking a practice run. "I just never got tired out there."

The Fremont Ross athlete no longer plays basketball competitively, instead using his endurance to succeed in cross country and track and field. This week, Smith won both the Norm Bray Invitational (17:08) and a regular-season meet against Bowling Green, Bryan and Napoleon (17:31).

Coach John Elder anticipates Smith's weeks to get better later this fall, when the senior is again expected to compete for the state crown.

"I would expect top 10," Elder said of Smith, who did not even run cross country as a freshman. Several of his track teammates (Smith runs the 800 meters and 4x800-meter relay) talked him into coming out for the fall running sport.

As a sophomore, Smith and the Little Giants team went to state. Smith placed 23rd, helping the team to a No. 2 finish. A year later Smith finished 16th at state at Scioto Downs in Columbus.

His mother, Kathy Miles, watched those state meets, knowing that the result was not as important as the quest.

"It helps him because he's working for himself and for his team," she said.

"He's physically strong," Elder said, "and mentally strong. He just goes out to get it."

Practices "can be kind of a drag for a while," Smith said of the team's 1 1/2 hour runs. But while he doesn't like the task, he's happy with the company.

"I like how you have a smaller team," Smith said. "It's a tighter team. You really get to know everyone."

And on the runs, Smith has time to get to know himself. For 3.1 miles — about 17 minutes in Smith time — he can think about his two brothers, his two sisters or his job at Kroger's.

He described himself as laid-back. Elder called him "very humble."

"Cross country's an individual sport in a team concept," Elder said. "He's definitely an individual."

At the Galion Invitational, Fremont Ross captured its second championship this season, finishing five points ahead of Ashland. Lindsay Frontz sparked the Little Giants, finishing third with a time of 19:23.

Ross's Molly Goecke won the open division race, with a time of 21:27.

Woodmore brought home a second-place finish from the Perrysburg Invitational "A" Division. The Wildcats' Lindsay Travis won the meet in 20 minutes even, while Amanda Roadarmel finished 34 seconds later for sixth place.

The Wildcats' 58 points were 19 more than meet champion Cardinal Stritch's total of 39.

BOYS CROSS COUNTRY
Sparked by Jeremiah Smith's second-place finish, the Fremont Ross boys cross country team placed fourth overall at the Galion Invitational Saturday.

Smith was just eight seconds behind winner William Sheets of Ashland, who finished in 16:01.

"(Smith) had a great race," said Ross coach John Elder. "That was really nice. We always go down there and count on doing well. ... We did better than we expected."

The Little Giants finished with 151 points. Winner Ashland had 65.

In the "AA" Division of the Perrysburg Invitational, Oak Harbor captured fourth place with 129 points. Bryan won the meet with 86.

Kevin Straub paced the Rockets with a ninth-place finish (17:21).

"It was the best that we've run all year long," said Oak Harbor coach Bob Van Horn. "To finish fourth in this race was a sign that we're progressing the way we want to. The guys came to run."

Clyde, led by Jason Hill (14th, 17:32 and Josh Cook (17th, 17:48) finished on the Rockets' heels, with 129 points. Genoa had a 10th-place showing (244), while Margaretta finished 12th (279).

Jeremiah Smith continued his dominance for the Fremont Ross boys cross country team, finishing first in the Little Giants' 15-46 victory over Great Lakes League rival Fostoria.

Smith finished in 17:26, 32 seconds before second-place finisher Kurt Snyder of Ross.

The Ross girls placed third, with Lindsay Frontz turning in the Little Giants best place (6th, 19:31).

"We definitely can run with them," Ross girls coach Kathy Esposito said of Amherst Steele, the meet winners.

Clean sweep

Ross wins all 7 GLL meets

By MICHAEL BOSI
Staff writer

Sure, there are bigger and better things on the horizon for the Fremont Ross girls country team other than Tuesday's Great Lakes League tri-meet with Oregon Clay and Findlay.

CROSS COUNTRY

The league championship meet is in 10 days, with districts and regionals right on its heels.

But there was plenty of value — more than just finishing undefeated in the league — to beating Clay, 22-50, and Findlay, 15-50, said coach Cathy Esposito.

"I think every time we run a meet like this it prepares us a little better for bigger meets, and these girls need to run competitively to keep their mindset. They get really mentally down when they don't compete and all they're doing is practicing," Esposito said.

They practiced winning Tuesday, running in an air-tight pack for the majority of the rough, hilly Walsh Park course to finish 9-0 overall in dual meets and perfect in seven GLL contests.

The Ross boys team also won its meet, dumping Findlay, 25-30, and beating Clay by virtue of forfeit. Brett Baddorf set a course record for Findlay.

While Clay sophomore Katie Sekinger breezed to a girls victory in 20:04, the Little Giants claimed six of the top eight spots, led by Lindsay Frontz's second-place showing in 20:48.

"I felt pretty good," said Frontz, a sophomore. "Better than I usually feel on this course. It's hard. Too many hills."

Frontz, who has not finished lower than second in any of Ross's dual meets, is part of a talented youth movement that has blessed Esposito's squad this season.

"I knew they would step up, but I didn't think they'd be as strong as they are, though," said Esposito. "They're fantastic. My freshmen are very dependable."

The same can be said for the upperclassmen, too. Finishing third in Tuesday's meet was Alison Kelly (20:58), while senior captain Monica Wood was just six seconds behind. Juniors Kristyn Warner (sixth, 21:30) and Jami Toeppe (seventh, 22:02), making a comeback from a basketball injury, capped Ross's scoring.

Only Findlay's Jodi Harrington could crowbar her way into the pack-rats that were the Little Giants.

"That's exactly what we practice all the time," said Esposito. Our pack stayed together today and there really wasn't anyone around to break it up."

Like any good postseason-bound team, Ross has been able to shore up its roster. (Was that Indians GM John Hart around the Purple Pit?)

No trades or free agent acquisitions, but rather the return of Toeppe after a successful rehabilitation from a stress fracture suffered last winter. She has practiced with the team for about a month, and Tuesday marked a triumphant return for state runner-up.

"I knew we would have the depth to get us through the year so that Jami would be able to heal and come in when we needed her, and that's what's happened," Esposito said.

Now comes a lull for the Little Giants, and it is Esposito's chore to keep her team focused.

"Just concentrate on helping them to peak for the big meets, districts and regionals," Esposito said of her goal for the next 10 days leading up to the league meet at Oregon's Pearson Park. "That's our goal now, just to peak."

Meanwhile, the Ross boys team took three of the top five spots while in awe of Baddorf's performance. Baddorf finished in 16:36, three seconds better than former Trojan and state champion Sam Bell's 1994 mark.

Jeremiah Smith paced the Little Giants with a second-place finish (16:54). Jon Framstead finished fourth (18:01), Eric Gabel fifth (18:10), Kurt Snyder sixth (18:18) and Eli Semer ninth (18:31).

Smith was neck-and-neck with Baddorf for the first half of the race before Baddorf pulled away.

"In the second mile I fell off, I don't know why," Smith said. "I was just tired, I guess, and my legs gave out."

Monday's training regimen may have contributed to Ross's heavy feet.

"We've had people finally step up. We've just got to put it all on the same page in the same meet," Smith said. "We're capable of it, we just have to mentally prove it to ourselves first."

Said coach John Elder: "Down the road, we want to see how well we can do. We think we can get second in the GLL (behind Bedford), and based on this meet I think we can. ...

"We want to look forward to after the league meet. We want to see districts, regionals, state. We want to get as far as we can."
