

Ross girls, boys track teams debut

By BOB MARKER

News-Messenger Sports Editor

Norm Bray was pleased but Harold Zienta disappointed as Ross's boys and girls track teams prepared to open the season today at the Ross High School track complex.

"I'm very pleased to have 43 people report for the team," Bray, the boys coach said.

"It was a disappointing turnout," Zienta, the girls leader said after only 21 showed up for the squad practices.

The teams will host Tiffin Columbian and Galion, a pair of Northern Ohio League squads, in the 4 p.m. debut.

Bray's teams have traditionally fielded strong sprinters but that is not the case this season.

"It looks like our distance runners are going to have to carry us," he said. "That is the first time since 1965 that has been the case. We have 28 distance people and five sprinters — can you believe that? — it's hard for me to believe."

Bray's squad has 12 athletes who have either lettered in track or cross country. None, however, stood out for the Little Giants in 1982 but several had solid performances.

"In the field events," Bray said, "we are average but the pole vault should be the strongest."

In that event, veteran seniors Doug Zink and Steve Slatter are back for their third years.

The Ross coach said that in the shot and discus, he expects strong performances from sophomores Todd Beatty and Mike Bobay as they team up with letterman Tom Shaffer.

Lettermen Mark Schmidt and Brian Wensinger, both seniors, head the distance runners. Sophomores Mike Mezinger and John Snodgrass along with David Slater lettered in cross country.

The sprinters are senior Rick Heidelberg, juniors Mike Palomo and Huy Tran, all lettermen. Letterman Brad Pitts is the primary hurdler.

Junior non-letterman Gene Simmons is also a sprinter.

Despite the lack of sprinters, Bray still feels that those events and the relays should be strong.

"Even with five," he explained, "they should be decent when they get into shape. Simmons, with harder work, could be a very good sprinter."

Zienta has seven letter winners from last season and another senior who lettered as a sophomore but did not come out last season.

"We have a few more experienced people than last year," Zienta said, "because a lot of them had a chance to learn."

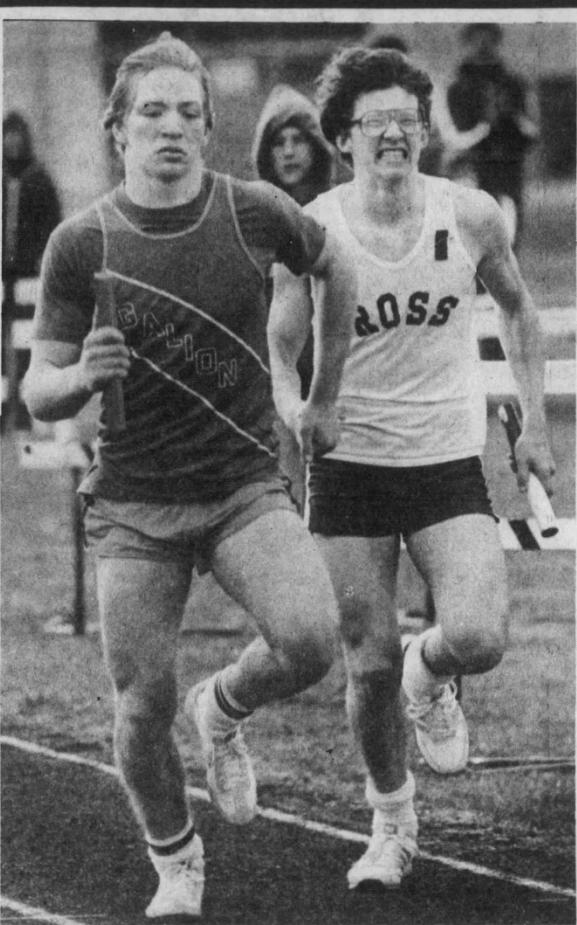

"It's too darn early, though, to tell where our strength will be."

The distance events could be if junior Doris Clark is healthy. She was hospitalized Monday and her status is doubtful.

In field events, Gwin Minnich and Melissa Mamula lettered in the shot and discus events.

Lisa Arndt, a senior who lettered as a sophomore, will be competing in the distance events. Clark, a second place finisher in the 1600 meters in the Buckeye Conference, is the top runner for Zienta at that distance.

Junior Katie Marritt is a strong middle distance runner who can run the longer distances. Sharon Lamalie is also a returning letter winner in the middle distance events. Junior letter winner Lisa Luman is a sprinter.
