FREMONT ROSS

Injuries and a small team plague first-year coach Cathy Mallia.

Juniors Heather Mears, the team's top runner, and Leslie Hasselbach are both hampered with injuries.

Mears is set to have knee surgery and Hasselbach is struggling with a pulled groin muscle.

Senior Deb Lilley will lead a team of only seven girls.

Sophomores Heather Brooks, Carey Gill, Jessica Potter and Janet Wiedle will complement Lilley and the two juniors when they return.

"Most of our girls run together," Mallia said. "Nobody is really outstanding and nobody is really that bad."

Ross opens the season on Tuesday with Great Lakes League foes Clay and Fostoria in Oregon.

FREMONT ROSS

A team without any seniors after the graduation of Steve Jay, Mark Sheidler and David Boda is looking to improve on last year's sixth-place finish in the Great Lakes League.

"With a good nucleus of juniors and sophomores, we have two years to build," coach John Elder said. "We expect to do much better than last year."

Sophomore Dane Snyder, who ran behind Jay last year, is the Little Giants' number one runner. Another sophomore, Doug Jibilian, will run behind Snyder.

Juniors Nate Cox, Tim Leeth and Rob Swaisgood lettered a year ago. Matt Henning is another junior as is Jeff Pasch, who is out with a knee injury.

Jibilian is closely followed by freshman Jeremiah Wagner, who is the Fremont Junior High School record holder.

"There could be lot of kids who have run fifth and sixth in the past who are going to have to move up to second and third," Elder said.

Ken Kreilick, a sophomore, along with freshman Clint Hill and Andy Hague could vie for spots in the lineup.

"We're really working hard right now, which makes things more exciting," Elder said. "We've developed some team goals; we'd like to win as many league meets as possible."

Two league foes, Clay and Fostoria, are the Little Giants first opponents Tuesday at Oregon.

Dane Snyder of Fremont Ross and Sara Yeager of St. Joseph Central Catholic stole the show, but Maumee and Toledo Central Catholic took the top team prizes Saturday at the Ross-St. Joe Invitational Cross Country Meet.

Snyder, a sophomore, outprinted Troy Gottfried of Ashland Crestview in the last 800 meters to win the boys varsity race, covering the 3.1 mile Wolf Creek Park course in 16 minutes, 50 seconds. Gottfried was five seconds off Snyder's pace.

"Dane had a great race. That was his best race of the year," Ross coach John Elder said.

"Dane was behind by about 10-15 yards on the last loop, but he made it up on the hills."

After Snyder's finish, Maumee runners finished fourth through eighth to win the team title. Maumee had 30 points while runner-up Ashland Crestview was charged with 69.

Andy Bartell led Maumee, placing fourth in 17:35.

Ross, with Snyder winning, Jeremiah Wagner taking ninth in 17:52 and Doug Jibillian 16th, finished third with 86.

"I thought the best race, other than Dane's, was Clint Hill's (20th in 18:43)," Elder said. "Tim Leeth wasn't feeling well and Clint stepped in and ran number four with his best time of the year. That picked up a lot of ground for us."

Rossford was fourth with 103, followed by Keystone with 115, St. Joe with 143 and Toledo Waite with 160.

Scott Reineck paced St. Joe, finishing 11th in 18:03.

Yeager beat St. Joe freshman classmate Jamie Chapman to the finish line in the girls varsity race. Yeager slipped past Chapman at the finish line, clocking in at 21:14. Chapman's time was 21:15 in the near photo finish.

"The first two girls ran a phenomenal race," St. Joe coach Gary Logsdon said. "That is the first time Sara has beaten Jamie and she beat her on the sprint."

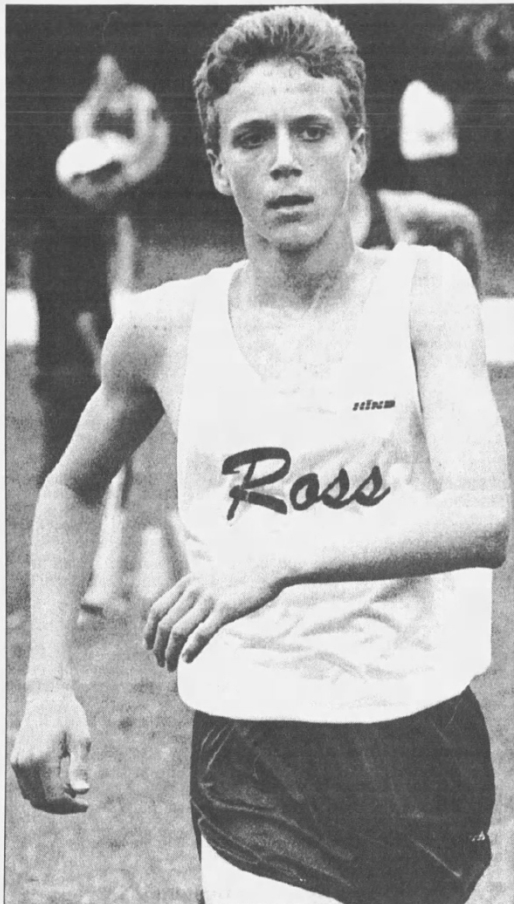

Toledo Central Catholic, with Lyndi Jacquemotte's third place finish topping the effort, won the team trophy with 37 points. Keystone was next at 58, followed by St. Joe with 68, Maumee at 91, Ross at 114 and Rossford with 131.

St. Joe's 1-2 individual finish did not surprise Logsdon.

"Toledo Central Catholic did not bring their 'A' team down," he said, "so once the race started and we saw where they were at, we knew we had a shot at doing that."

The Ross team effort was hurt early in the race when number one runner Deb Lilley fell, injuring her left hamstring. The top Ross finisher was Carey Gill, 12th in 22-flat. Leslie Hasselbach was next for the Little Giants, placing 19th in 23:06.

"If we would have had Deb in

News-Messenger/Bob Marker

there, we would have been more competitive," Ross girls coach Cathy Mallia said. "We would have been up, maybe, seven (individual) places."

In varsity open racing, Matt Henning of Ross was seventh in 19:38, the only top 10 Ross or St. Joe finish in the boys race. Sarah Huss of St. Joe was 23rd in the girls open race.

Also, Fremont Junior High School won the girls title with 23 points, far ahead of runner-up Maumee's 57. St. Joe was third with 80.

Jamie Toeppe of Fremont won the 2-mile race in 12:57. Alison Kelly of Fremont was third in 14:15, followed by teammates Michelle Salas and Monica Woods in fourth and fifth, respectively.

Dominique Reyes was eighth and Angie Reineck ninth for St. Joe.

In the boys junior high race, Kurt Snyder of Fremont was second in 12:30 as Keystone won the title with 57, a point less than Maumee. St. Joe was third with 71, Crestview fourth with 76 and Fremont finished with 79.

St. Joe's top finisher was Aaron Pollick, sixth in 13:07. Jan Burroughs of St. Joe was ninth.

"Stacy was kind of disappointed last Saturday, but she had cramps at the end of the race and couldn't finish real hard," Woodmore coach Mark Yoder said. "She was out to get after it today. Nature Trails is a fast course and she thought she'd have a good chance to break the school record and she did just that."

Beth Parkins took eighth, Laurie Crispen was 13th and Traci Sandwisch was 20th for the Wildcats.

"All seven girls ran good races today," Yoder said. "When your seventh runner comes in in front of Liberty Benton's fifth runner, that really says something about your depth."

Lakota's Julie Harrison was third in 19:42, teammate Traci Artiaga took fifth (19:58) and Oak Harbor's Lynn Garrett was 12th (20:41).

In the boys Division II race, Oak Harbor's Scott Schmidt was seventh in 17:23.

In the Division III event, Lakota's Sam Windom was third in 17:08 and Sam Weaver was fourth in 17:13.

Woodmore's Ben Stebing took ninth in 17:25, Brock Cleveland was 13th (17:37) for Old Fort and Gibsonburg's Josh Young was 22nd in 18:08.
