Jordan vaults 14-3 for new Ross mark

Matthew Horn

Fremont News-Messenger
USA TODAY NETWORK

Fremont Ross vaulter AnneMarie Moses had Keaton Jordan curious.

Little Giants assistant coach Pryde Yost did the rest.

Jordan and Moses still laugh about Jordan's inauguration.

"I remember as a young freshman running distance and seeing AnneMarie jumping," Jordan said. "That would be a great way to get out of running. I was bad.

"I started my freshman year jumping 11-feet-ish. I ended up loving it. I wanted to challenge myself to get better and people motivated me."

Jordan cleared 14-3 at home Tuesday to establish a school record.

"I wouldn't be able to do anything I'm doing without him," Jordan said of Yost. "AnneMarie got me over and Pryde made it happen."

Jordan advanced to 14-feet with three jumpers left at an invite last weekend. All three cleared and the bar went to 14-6, before Jordan finished second.

"I was the last one in (Tuesday), so I set it where I wanted," he said of 14-3. "I was nervous. My coach and my dad told me to have fun and relax. I cleared with a close call.

"We've been pushing the pace. The record was the goal. Now, we're pushing for higher heights and state."

Jordan now aspires to clear 14-9, if not 15.

"After the record, I don't want to step back and relax," he said. "I want to get up higher."

Jordan stopped playing baseball to focus on track.

"After the first year, I wanted to get serious," he said. "That's where it all started."

Jordan trains at Altitude Headquarters in Bellevue on Wednesdays and Sundays, often with Yost.

"All the great jumpers there motivate me to jump higher," he said.

He was further invigorated by his record-breaking vault. It got the attention of some recruiters.

"I got the record I've been looking forward to the last four years," Jordan said. "At first, I was unsure what I wanted to do after high school. I hope to jump high enough for the state meet and jump in college."

"It makes you want to go for it."

Jeff Opelt cleared 14-2 in 1973 for the old mark.

"It was the oldest record on the board," Jordan said. "It was 45 years old. I had so many great jumpers to look up to and saw them get so close. Seeing (Tyler Schell and Jalen Oman) barely miss motivated me and made it extra special. I put in a lot of work."

Jordan won the pole vault in four of Ross' first six meets.

He was sixth at regional as a junior and fifth at district to narrowly miss advancing his first two years. He was third in the Three Rivers Athletic Conference as a junior, fourth as a sophomore and eighth as a freshman.

Jordan, who still occasionally runs on the 4x400 relay, didn't compete in track in the offseason to fully recover from a meniscus tear during wrestling two years ago.

"I have a good coach and teammates who've pushed me for four years," he said. "I'm hard on myself in competition. I've learned to have fun. I jump better when I'm having fun."
