"The girls ran a smart race in the heat," Bellevue coach Lee Booze said. "We knew it would be tough by 10:30 (a.m.) and they didn't run too hard too early. They ran well down the stretch.

"This is a great meet to start the season with. I know the kids may not know who Chris Green was, but a lot of older runners and coaches do. It's important that we take a moment to remember some of the great coaches and athletes that have run here at Osborne Park over the years. The local halls of fame are filled with great runners that blistered this course. My kids get tired of me talking about the 'good old days' of high school cross country, but every year when we run this meet it brings back memories. I'm sure some of the other coaches feel the same way."

Faye Sloma was sixth and Valerie Bixler was seventh as Fremont Ross finished the girls race in third place.

"I was pleased with both teams' performance," Little Giants coach John Elder said. "It was very hot and muggy and we run well in these conditions."
