Bruins All Even With Neighbors

They may not be the toast of the town, but Boston's battered Bruins are all even with their uppity basketball neighbors, the Celtics, today.

The National Hockey League tailenders and the National Basketball Association pace-setters each own one-game winning streaks.

The Bruins finally cornered the Montreal Canadiens Sunday, goalie Ed Johnston blanking the NHL leaders 3-0 to break a five-game Boston tailspin.

Earlier in the day at Boston Garden, the Celtics, whose 16-game NBA winning skein was snapped Saturday night, had rebounded for a runaway victory over Los Angeles.

Johnston stopped 30 Montreal shots for his third shutout of the season and Ab McDonald led the attack with his 100th career goal as Boston beat the Canadiens for the first time in nine meetings. Goals by Tom Williams and Forbes Kennedy, the latter on a solo dash while the Bruins were shorthanded, padded the decision.
