Get out the nine irons, folks. It is golf season! The Fremont Ross Varsity golf team has been working hard and is ready for a challenging season.

No one is more ready to step up to the challenge than the coach. Mr. Scharer has been coaching for more than 37 years, but has been coaching golf at Fremont Ross for four years. Although he might be new to the Fremont Ross team, he is no amateur to golf. He began coaching when he was sixteen. Since then he has coached baseball, basketball and golf. It is no wonder that golf has a special place in Mr. Scharer's heart. "I believe that it is a gentlemen's sport, where you really have to be honest and call fouls on yourself," he explains. "It involves mental toughness."

Because of his love of the sport, Mr. Scharer is tough on his team. "The team has not lived up to what it should be, but we are 6th in our division," he admitted. It is clear that Mr. Scharer has high standards for his golfers.

Mr. Scharer hopes this year that the team will perform to their best ability and advance to districts. Next year the golf team might have returning members, as this year there are only two seniors, Jared Hunten and Albert Baumann.
