2000-01 PREP WRESTLING PREVIEW

New crop of champions?

Little Giants take aim at GLL crown

By SCOTT BLACK
News-Messenger correspondent

Fremont Ross is expecting one of its strongest wrestling teams in quite some time. The Little Giants have 32 kids out for the team with a wealth of experience coming back to blend in with some exceptional freshmen wrestlers.

"We really have a good group of kids coming back," head coach Grover Dowell said. "We should be a really nice team. With the young kids we have returning and the new freshmen coming out, this team is going to be fun to coach the next couple of years."

The key losses for Ross were Tobe Forshay, Roy Zamarripa, Ryan Cooley and Mike Adams.

The Little Giants will return seven lettermen, with Rick Legg and Zac Potridge leading the way. Cody Amor and Tommy Wagner will also add firepower to the Ross lineup.

As for newcomers, Andrew Legg was a state and national junior high champion, and Brock Davis was a state placer. Austin Earle has been a pleasant surprise to Dowell.

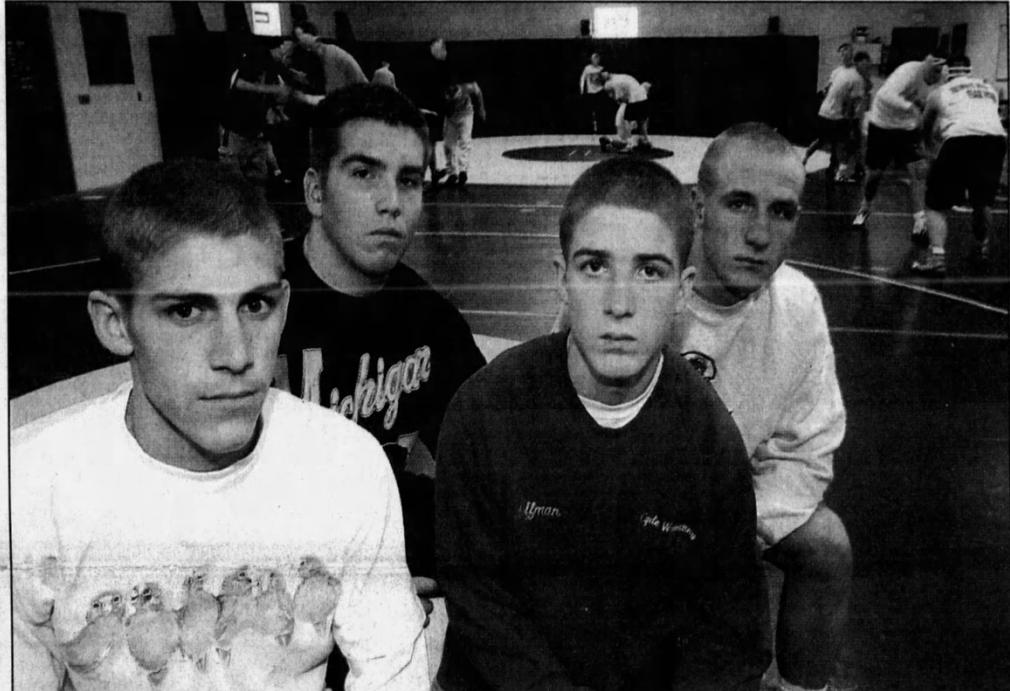

"I am really excited about the young kids coming up," Dowell said. "They have been very receptive to coaching and have been working their tails off. I have been impressed with the whole team's aggressiveness. We've added Matt Merrill, who wrestled for Ross and Eastern Michigan, to the staff and the kids have responded well to him."

Dowell said Ross can compete for the Great Lakes League title.

CLYDE WRESTLERS, from left, Nathan Shearer, Austin Balogh, T.C. Hoffman and Adam Dymond are back for coach Dale Carroll after qualifying for state last year. The Fliers, who finished fourth in the state in Division II, must replace two state champions from last season.

State qualifiers hope to continue Clyde tradition

By SCOTT BLACK
News-Messenger correspondent

Clyde wrestling coach Dale Carroll definitely has his work cut out for him this year. Carroll has the daunting task of trying to replace all four state champions in Doug West and Rondall Blackburn and a state qualifier in Jeff Sosa as well as a three-time district qualifier in Brock Conner.

But then again it seems as if Clyde always has to replace good wrestlers because they keep turning them out. The Fliers finished fourth as a team in the Division II state meet last year.

Even with all the key losses, the Fliers will return four state qualifiers to their lineup: Austin Balogh, T.C. Hoffman, Nathan Shearer and two-time qualifier Adam Dymond.

"We have four state qualifiers back this year," Carroll said. "But none of them has been able to take their game to the next level yet. We need these qualifiers to move up to state placers."

One of the things that Carroll must figure out is where to put everybody in the lineup. The biggest concern will be heavyweight and 112 pounds.

"We would like to move Balogh to 215 so that we can fit Luke Seal into the lineup at heavyweight," Carroll said.

"But there is always concern when you try to move a state qualifier to a new spot. At 112, we have five quality wrestlers. We have to find a way to spread them out and get a couple of them in the lineup.

"We have some nice experience back, but we are really lean at some weight classes and injuries will hurt us. Even without injuries, we will be very green throughout the lineup."

The Fliers were picked to finish third behind Oak Harbor and Perkins in the Sandusky Bay Conference by the league coaches at their annual meeting.

Oak Harbor Rockets

The Oak Harbor wrestling program has always been successful, and this year will be no different as Oak Harbor has 41 kids out for wrestling.

The Rockets will be trying to improve upon a season that saw them qualify 11 wrestlers to the district and five to the state tournament.

SBC coaches' poll

Following are how Sandusky Bay Conference coaches ranked the conference wrestling teams in a preseason poll:

1. Oak Harbor
2. Perkins
3. Clyde
4. St. Mary
5. Edison
6. Port Clinton
7. Huron
8. Margaretta

The Rockets also won the SBC Duals and finished second in the SBC Tournament to Division III state champion St. Mary Central Catholic.

Little Giants claim seven individual titles

By SCOTT BLACK
News-Messenger correspondent

When the dust settled from the morning and afternoon sessions, there was no doubt Ross was going to win its eighth consecutive Mal Mackey Tournament.

The question was how bad of a whipping Ross was going to put on the rest of the teams in the 28th annual event at the Purple Pit.

Going into the finals, Ross held a 165-114.5 lead over second-place Perrysburg. Ross also had 12 of the 13 wrestlers it entered in the tournament wrestling in the finals.

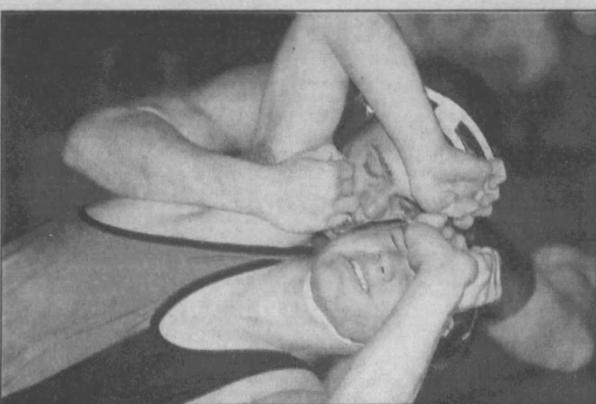

Ross went on to score 202.5 points and crown seven champions. Perrysburg was second with 131.5 points and Lima Senior was third with 112.

"Winning the Mackey always feels good," Ross coach Grover Dowell said. "It's always one of our goals to win our own tournament in front of the home crowd."

Winning titles for Ross were Brock Davis (112 pounds), Derek Earhart (119), Tommy Wagner (135), Cody Amor (140), Chris Kayser (171) Luke Swint (189) and Rick Legg (215).

Placing second for Ross were Kyle Wensinger (130), Andrew Legg (152) and Jesse Wukie (160). Mike Shahan (145) and Jerrod Pena (275) finished third.

Davis got the Ross train rolling with an unusual pin of Thomas Downie of Bowling Green at four minutes and 35 seconds of the 112-pound match.

"The kid started going high and trying to throw in a leg," Davis said. "I caught his head and pulled him down into a stack. I knew I had him as soon as I hit it. It felt good."

Earhart recorded a 17-7 win at 119.

"This feels so good because last year I got eliminated right away," Earhart said. "This year I won it all."

"In the finals we both had the same moves. I just hit mine better."

Wagner won the 135 title 8-7 win over Garret Bays of Otsego.

"This was just a sweet win," Wagner said. "The final was a tough match. He was a good kid, but it was fun to wrestle him. There were a couple of times I thought I had takedowns on him at the edge of the mat, but the ref didn't Shearer recorded a 12-4 major decision victory over Upper Sandusky's Darren Rowland in the 119-pound championship match. Shearer, a senior, improved to 16-1 on the season by winning all four of his matches.

"He wrestled very well," Clyde coach Dale Carroll said of Shearer.

Clyde scored 157 points and finished behind only Mount Vernon (178.5).

Dymond, a 171-pound senior, got his 100th victory by beating Lexington's Bob Hudak 17-0 in the tournament opener. Dymond (15-3) won four of his five matches and finished third in his class.

"That's quite a feat for him," Carroll said. "Only eight or nine wrestlers have ever done that for us."

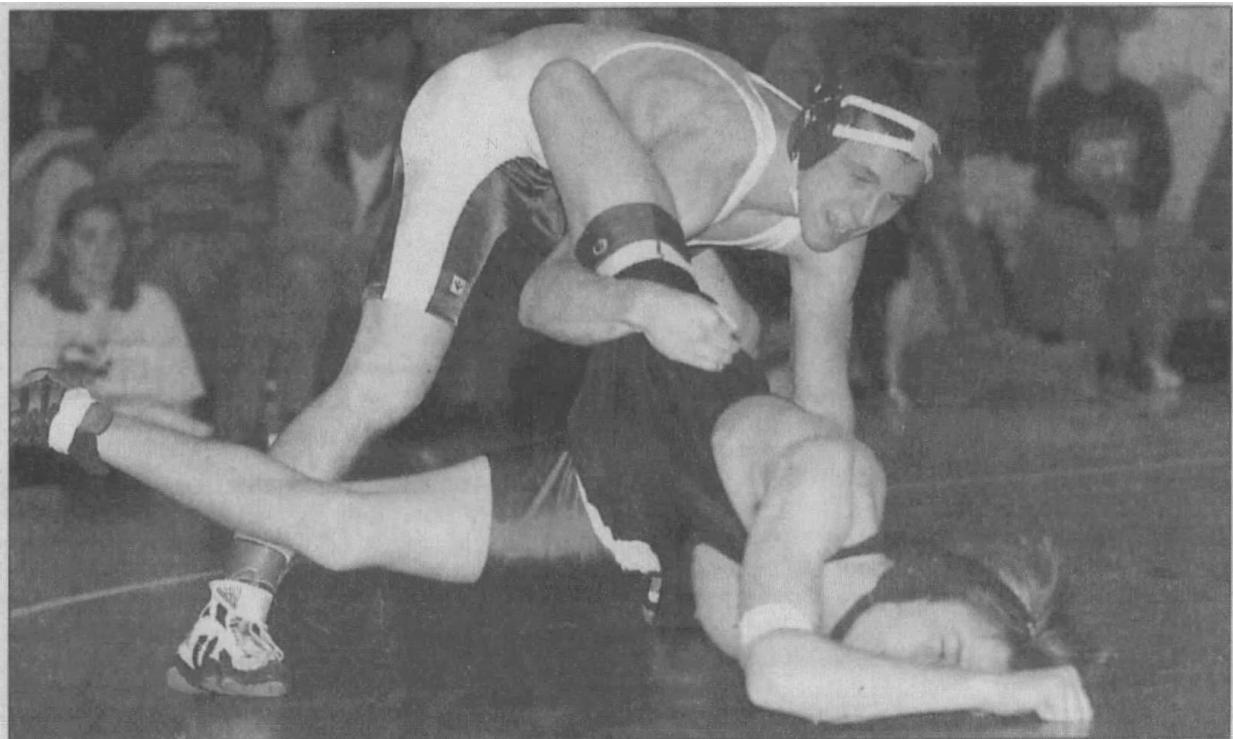

Standout Clyde freshman Tanner Shearer (16-1) finished second in the 112-pound class after dropping his first match of the season, a 4-1 decision to Loudonville's Tyler Scott in the championship. Scott won a state title in the 103-pound division last season.

J.R. Ysguirre (13-5) also finished second for Clyde. He defaulted to Willard's Mike Compton in the 103-pound finals.

Other third-place finishers for Clyde were Austin Balogh (215) and Luke Seal (Hwt.). Balogh is 15-4 on the season, Seal 14-4.

see it that way and called us out. Those points would have made it a little easier."

Amor won the 140 title with two pins and an 18-1 technical fall. His pin of Drew Johnson of Shawnee in 1:51 earned him the title.

"This is the home crowd," Amor said. "That's what makes it feel so good. I was going to try a stack with my guy but I pinned him with a cradle."

Kayser started a string of three straight Ross titles with an 8-2 win over Chris Hires of Perrysburg.

"This is my second Mackey in a row and it feels just as good as the first one," Kayser said. "In my first two matches, I worked scissors and stretched their arms. In the final, nothing was working but my double leg so I went with it."

Swint was up next for Ross and pinned his way through the tournament. He pinned Dan Bahler of Perrysburg first, then Terrance Ramsey of Lima Senior in 3:01 for the title.

"He was a strong kid," Swint said. "I got an ankle pick and then worked to keep him down when I was on top until he wore out."

Legg picked up his second Mackey title and Ross's last of the night at 215 with a 16-0 technical fall of Dan McPheron of Lima Senior.

"Last year I got a pin to win my title," said Legg. "So I was a little disappointed that I didn't get another pin. I had a lot of energy and felt very determined today."

Perrysburg's Kyle Hreben, who won the 130-pound championship, was named the tournament's MVP. Dowell was named the tournament's outstanding coach.

Ross will host Toledo Whitmer on Wednesday.

ANDREW LEGG of Ross holds Whitmer's Mike Breith to the mat during a 152-pound match on Wednesday at the Purple Pit. Legg beat Breith 10-0, but the Panthers won the meet 47-19.

Panthers use experience to roll past Ross 47-19 in GLL match

By MICHAEL PIDANICK
Staff writer

It's not that Fremont Ross wrestling coach Grover Dowell doesn't have faith in his team. But all he had to do was look at the senior count to figure out his Little Giants were going to be in for a tough night against Toledo Whitmer.

The Panthers used a convincing advantage in experience and rolled to a 47-19 Great Lakes League win at the Purple Pit.

"I was afraid that would happen," Ross coach Grover Dowell said. "Whitmer's got a nice program and they have seven seniors to our one. So I thought that might happen.

"It happens. And we had a couple of kids get caught (and pinned). When you're the aggressor and taking the offensive, those things can happen."

The patient Panthers won eight of the 12 contested matches and recorded four pins. All four of Ross's victories were by decision.

"All they really did was stall," said Ross senior Rick Legg, a winner at 215-pounds. "We couldn't really do any of the moves we practiced all week."

Legg, Andrew Legg, Stuart McAllister and Derek Wensinger were victorious for the Little Giants. Chris Kayser won by forfeit at 171. Rick Legg improved to 27-0 with an easy 9-2 win over Nick Dolik.

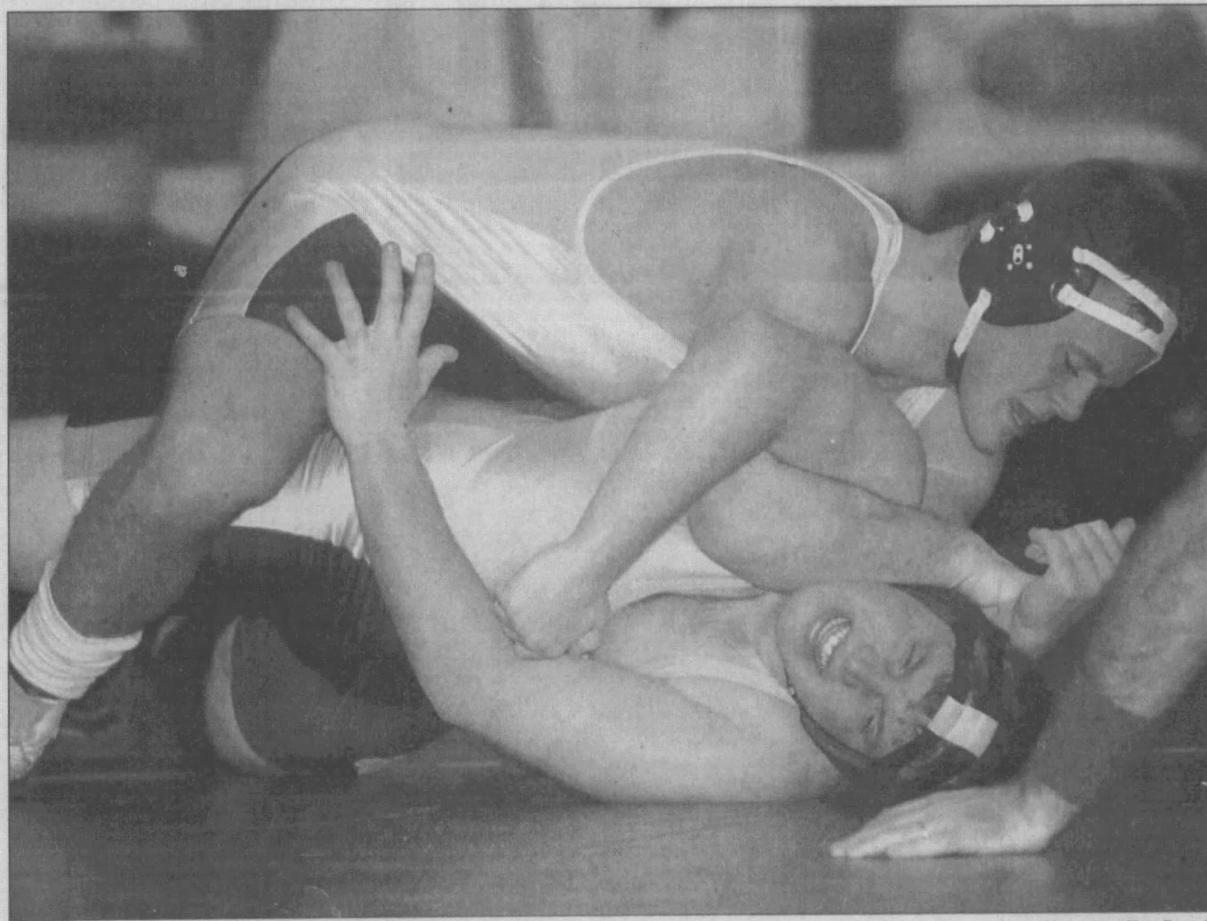

"I thought I'd beat him a little bit more than I did," Legg said. "But all he did was stall, so there wasn't much I could do."

Andrew Legg, Rick's younger brother, was the most convincing Ross winner of the evening. Andrew whipped Mike Breith in a 10-0 major decision at 152 pounds.

Whitmer routs Little Giants

Legg said he was looking to bounce back from a disappointing second-place finish at Saturday's Mal Mackey Invitational.

"I had a bad week last week and I was trying to make up for it," he said. "This week I worked a lot harder in practice and practiced what I needed to practice."

"I felt good going into the match and I felt good after the match."

McAllister's win at 135 pounds was part of a busy night for the Ross junior. He had an 8 p.m. class at Terra, so his match was moved to the start of the slate. McAllister posted a 7-3 decision over Jason Dalton.

"We actually bumped him up a class," Dowell said. "He usually wrestles at 130. He did a nice job in a good match."

McAllister's usual practice partner, sophomore Kyle Wensinger, won the most competitive match of the night. Wensinger rallied with five points in the last 30 seconds to post a 14-12 decision over Chad Sharp at 130 pounds.

"Kyle showed a lot of heart," Dowell said. "Those two (Wensinger and McAllister) practice and wrestle-off together and they're at each other all the time. You can see that in a match. They're both very competitive."

The rest of the night belonged to the Panthers. Whitmer's Kirk Bowman (112) pinned Eric Elizondo in one minute, 23 seconds; Tim Root stopped Jake Gutschalk in 3:47, Eric Herman pinned Cody Amor in 4:50 and Chris Brown (heavyweight) stopped Jarrod Pena in 1:46. The Panthers' Brent Maldonado won by injury default after Ross's Luke Swint was stopped by a shoulder injury just two seconds into the 189-pound match.

Ross senior reaching high goals in final campaign

By MICHAEL PIDANICK
Staff writer

The last time Fremont Ross was represented at the state wrestling tournament, Rick Legg was the only current Little Giant team member even in high school.

Now the team's leader and only senior, Legg is looking to end Ross's two-year state drought while wrestling in the same class as the school's last state-qualifier.

"It's been a while," Ross coach Grover Dowell said. "I'm ready for someone to go all the way. We'll see what happens. He's been going real well lately. I just hope it continues."

Wrestling at 215 pounds in 1998, then-senior Aaron Root won his first match at state before dropping his next two. Ross has had only three wrestlers advance as far as district since then.

The Little Giants haven't had a placer since Matt Merrill was fifth and Jason Hatfield was sixth in 1995.

But Legg is thinking of breaking the longer drought.

"I want to go all the way to state," Legg said. "But I want to place up there too, hopefully first or second."

Jim Mooney, at 120 pounds in 1960, is the only Ross wrestler to win a state championship. Three Little Giants have placed second:

Hilliard Darby, but fell one win shy of reaching state.

"I don't want what happened last year to happen again," Legg said. "I wasn't in as good of condition as I could have been, and I kind of gassed out before the third period every match. I've been working a lot harder on that so I'm in a lot better shape."

Legg will turn his interests to football permanently after the wrestling season. He has been nominated for the Air Force Academy by U.S. Rep. Paul Gillmor. If accepted, he will play football.

As an offensive lineman for the 6-4 Little Giants, Legg earned All-Ohio special mention, all-district first-team and GLL lineman of the year honors.

But for now, his attention is on the wrestling mat. As well as breaking the state tournament drought, Legg has been called upon to lead an extremely young Little Giants team. Ross has only six returning lettermen on the active roster.

But despite the lack of classmates on the team, Legg insists it has been a fun season.

"We're definitely a young team," Legg said.

"But it's not really all that lonely for me. I've been wrestling with all these guys since eighth grade. I'm just one of the guys."

Dick Swidersky (1959), Tony Munoz (1975) and Chad Green (1991).

The way Legg has been wrestling this year, his goals aren't out of the question. He's 27-0 with three tournament championships for the Little Giants.

"That's sweet, isn't it," Dowell said of Legg's record. "He's got a real positive attitude and he's looking like he can do big things for us this year."

Legg won the Ashland Tournament on Nov. 10, the Wendy's Invitational in Tiffin on Dec. 29 and the Mal Mackey on Jan. 6. He has easily won all three of his GLL matches.

"He's been doing real well," said freshman Andrew Legg, Rick's brother and Ross's 152-pound wrestler. "He has a positive chance of reaching state. He's been working hard for that."

ANDREW LEGG, top, of Fremont Ross gets the upper hand on Lorain Southview opponent Alex Torres during Wednesday's Great Lakes League match at the Purple Pit. Legg claimed a 17-1 technical fall.

A Great Lakes League colleague called Ross wrestling coach Grover Dowell on Wednesday to say he thought the Little Giants could knock off unbeaten Lorain Southview.

Dowell agreed.

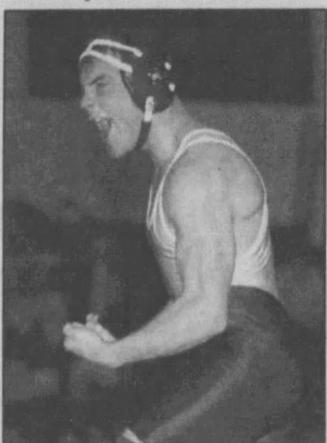

Then Dowell had to explain why there was little chance of it actually happening.

Ross entered the dual match missing six starters due to injury or illness, and Southview pounced. The Saints used five pins and a forfeit to run out to a 36-0 lead and sailed to a 62-17 victory at the Purple Pit, ensuring Southview a perfect first and only trip through the GLL regular season.

"The league is really screwed up now, with everybody bumping everybody off," Dowell said. "I told him (the GLL coach) what I was doing and what happened to the kids. He said, 'Well, tough luck.'"

Southview, which is leaving the league after the current school year, is 7-0 in league matches heading into the GLL meet Feb. 10 at Fostoria. Ross is 3-3-1.

"I think we're peaking at the right time," said Southview assistant coach

TOMMY WAGNER of Ross celebrates after pinning Lorain Southview's Sven Wolf on Wednesday.

Billy Kopp, who won a state title as a Saints wrestler in 1988. "I'm looking for a pretty tough conference tournament."

(140), Chris Kayser (171) and Luke Swint (189). Gutschalk and Wensinger were ill, and the rest suffered from various injuries. Amor, who has a sore back, wanted to wrestle Wednesday but was held out for the GLL meet.

Ross got three victories Wednesday, two of which came from wrestlers who moved up a weight class.

Most impressive was the effort of freshman Andrew Legg, who wrestled at 160 pounds instead of his customary 152 because he was coming off a week-long illness. Legg, now 20-9 on the year, overcame a knee injury and a bloody nose to record a 17-1 technical fall over Southview opponent Alex Torres.

"I was a little bit overweight," Legg said. "I knew I was going to be. I like to keep my weight a little higher than my actual weight class. I was too sick to cut weight. ... I felt good tonight. I felt a lot better than I did yesterday at practice. But I burned a lot of energy in the first period. It was hard to keep my energy up for the whole three periods."

Legg, who wears a volleyball pad on his right knee to keep the kneecap from shifting out of place, stopped the scoreless match with 26 seconds to go in the first period when he clutched his knee in pain.

He recovered with a five-point flurry before the end of the period, but suffered a bloody nose as the buzzer rang.

As Legg closed out the second period with a 9-1 lead, he grabbed the knee again, using the last of his allotted injury time. Another stoppage would have cost Legg the match. But he closed out Torres well before the clock ran out in the third period.

"I thought about it before I started back down (for the third period)," Legg said of his injury. "But once the wrestling starts, you can't think about it anymore."

Said Dowell, "Andrew's a quality competitor. He works his butt off. I was hoping he would pull through. The kid he beat is a tough kid."

Ross's Tommy Wagner, who pinned Sven Wolf with only three seconds remaining in the first period, wrestled at 140 pounds instead of his usual 135.

Wagner, now 21-5, climbed to take Amor's spot.

"He bumped up and did a real nice job at 140," Dowell said. "I'm surprised he did as well as he did, but he's a real strong kid for a 135-pounder."

Ross's top wrestler, senior Rick Legg, improved to 28-0 with a pin in one minute, 44 seconds over Moe Bryner in the 215-pound class.

Kopp said Rick Legg "is really tough. I liked him. He was moving fast, more like a lightweight than he was a heavyweight."

Ross is off until the GLL meet.
