Two rivalries in one

Big crowd expected when Ross meets Clyde, Sandusky

Fremont Ross will add another installment to one wrestling rivalry, while dusting off another Wednesday at the Purple Pit.

The Little Giants host Sandusky and Clyde for a double-dual at 6 p.m. Wednesday in their last dual meet of the calendar year.

Ross and the Blue Steaks are no strangers as fierce league rivals, but it has been a while since Clyde stepped on the mat with the Little Giants.

Fliers head coach Dale Carroll said the two programs haven't faced each other since the early 1990s. The closeness and the caliber of wrestling prompted Ross head coach Grover Dowell to rekindle the local rivalry.

"They have a quality program. I want my kids going against tough kids," Dowell said. "Your program can't get better unless it wrestles the better kids. Plus, I thought it would be really neat. It's going to be a really big night."

Ross, picked to win the Great Lakes League this year, opened the season with a victory over Oregon Clay, but bowed to Fostoria, 47-27, on Thursday. Bringing two rivals to the same mat certainly has emotions running high for the Little Giants.

"I think my kids are pumped. They were really disappointed after the tri with Fostoria. I think they want the league this year," Dowell said.

The Little Giants (2-2, 1-1 GLL) responded to the Fostoria loss with a solid effort at the 15-team Rogers Invitational over the weekend. Ross had five wrestlers seeded, but came away with 10 placers. And in those finals matches, Ross won eight of the 10.

Tommy Wagner (152 pounds) and Andrew Legg (171), individual champions at Rogers, continue to pace the Little Giants. Legg has the team's best record at 11-0, while Wagner's only loss came against Bedford in the season opener. He is 9-1. Zac Potridge (112) is 10-2.

Dowell was satisfied with his team's performance over the weekend and looks forward to a full lineup on Wednesday. Myles Porter (145) will fill in for Kyle Wensinger, who is out with a strained elbow. Porter, a first-year wrestler, took fifth on Saturday. Jacob Wukie will fill the 135-pound void, giving Ross a complete lineup.

The Little Giants had one of the larger crowds in Toledo for the two-day tournament. Dowell said his fan base is supportive and thinks the same is true for the Fliers and Streaks.

"I expect a real big crowd. Sandusky always has a good following and so does Clyde," he said.

In preparing for the highly-anticipated double-dual, Dowell spoke with both coaches. He expects Clyde to be the tougher opponent.

Carroll agreed the Ross-Clyde matchup will be a hit with fans.

"I think we're very strong in the lower weights and young in our upper weights. Ross is the opposite. It should be quite a match," he said. "I definitely think this is great for our fans. This is an opportunity to come in and watch some exciting wrestling."

Clyde is coming off a respectable fourth-place finish at the Dublin Coffman Invitational on Saturday.

Heavyweight Luke Seal is Clyde's only undefeated wrestler, while T.C. Hoffman (125) has one loss.

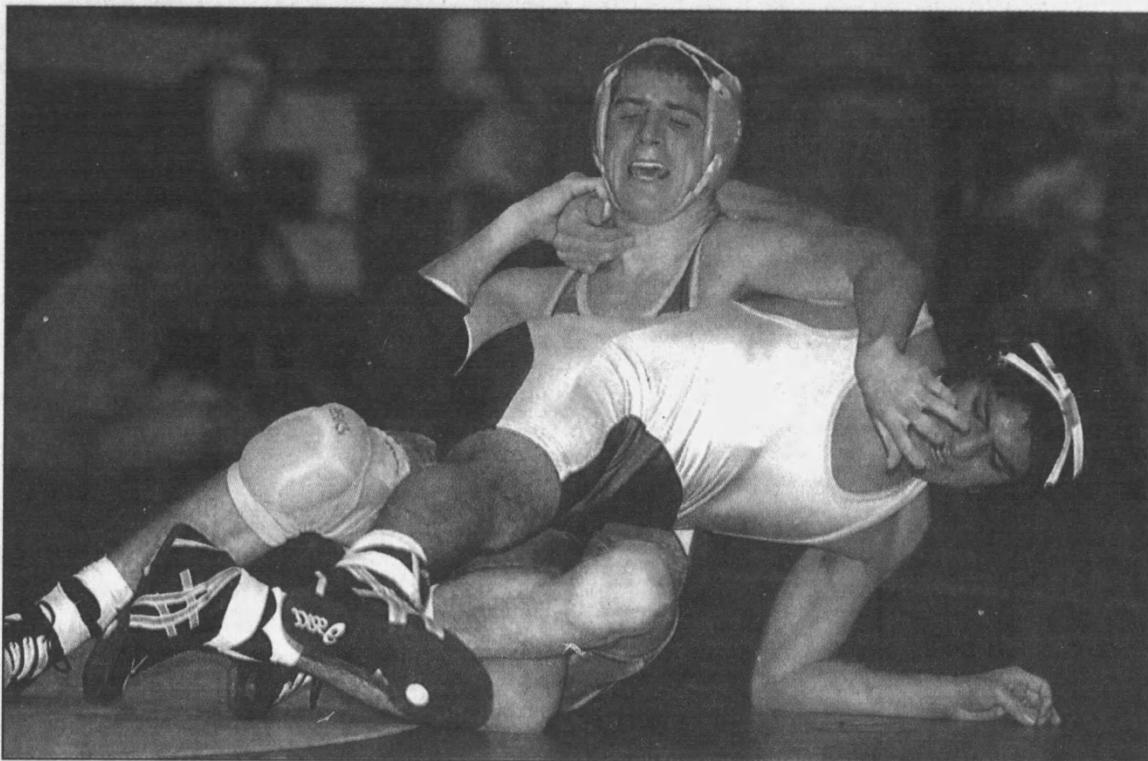

With only five upperclassmen and nine freshmen, the Fliers are starting to get into the groove of the new season.

"We've basically haven't wrestled in a dual, so we don't know our kids will react with the new rule changes," Carroll said.

"The first couple of weeks we've been battling weight control. We've got that under control now. Now it's just a matter of getting better. They know what Ross and Sandusky are all about. They know it's going to be a tough match."

Clyde's young wrestling team displayed veteran poise by adding two victorious installments to heated rivalries Wednesday.

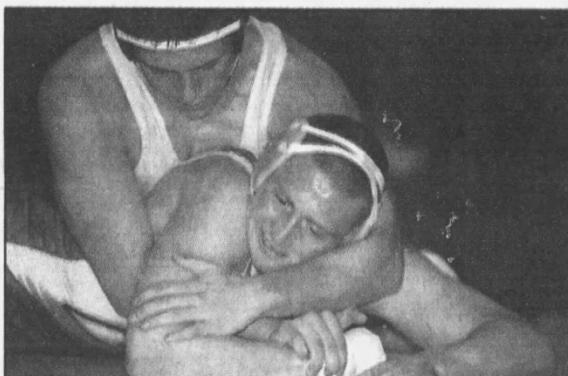

The Fliers edged Fremont Ross 38-33 and pounded Sandusky 52-24 in a double-dual at the Purple Pit.

The Little Giants downed the Blue Streaks 48-23 in a Great Lakes League match.

"It's always tough to wrestle here at Ross," Fliers head coach Dale Carroll said. "They have a good team, an aggressive team. We're happy with how we did."

Clyde gave up two pins and a forfeit against Ross, but the Fliers made up the difference with six pins of their own. The Flier triumph was sealed when heavyweight Luke Seal pinned Fremont's Jarrod Pena in three minutes, 43 seconds. Seal was one of three Fliers who recorded two pins. T.C. Hoffman (125) and Tyson Bouyack (145) also had two falls.

The double-dual format consisted of three rounds. The upper weights and lower weights of all three teams wrestled on two different mats, often at the same time, making team scoring hard to follow.

"You don't know the team said Seal, "We're a young team, but a quality team. We came in here knowing we could beat these two teams. We needed kids to step up, and they did."

Other double winners for Clyde were Adam Thurn (103), J.R. Ysaguirre (112), Nick Garcia (119) and Bob Blackburn (135). Single match winners included Bryce Aona (140), Jacob Zieber (152) and Brian Coffee (171).

Ross (3-3, 2-1 GLL) expected the tougher match to be against the Fliers. The narrow margin of defeat was tough for Little Giants head coach Grover Dowell.

"Against Clyde, we had some key losses. I had a couple kids I was really disappointed in the way they performed. Stage fright, I don't know," he said.

"But, overall, the team was aggressive and came back and looked like they wanted to win. I told them the important thing was going against Sandusky."

Little Giants settle for ninth at Wendy's

Four Ross wrestlers win in consolation finals to highlight weekend

By ALEXIUS TOMASZEWSKI

Staff writer

TIFFIN- Fremont Ross made the most of what it had.

The Little Giants placed four wrestlers to highlight a ninth-place finish in the 19th Wendy's Invitational Tournament on Saturday. Ross had 89.5 points.

Toledo Central Catholic was the tournament champion with 163 points, and Cleveland St. Ignatius was the runner-up with 159 points.

Ross started the second day of the tournament in good position with 11 wrestlers vying for placement. After the mats were rolled up, the Little Giants had only four placers.

"As a team, we sort of stunk. We had a good first day and came back the second day with everyone still alive. I was real happy," Ross head coach Grover Dowell said. "But, they didn't pull together. There were four guys that I would have swore would place, and they didn't."

"It was a good, competitive tournament, but those kids that I expected to be placing. If they're going to place at the end of the year, they should be placing here. There's a lot of state quality wrestlers here, so they found out what they've got to do."

Dowell's four placers made the most of their opportunities, with each winning their finals match. Tommy Wagner (152) and Chris Kayser (189) both finished third, while Jake Gutschalk (130) and Jarrod Pena (275) took fifth.

Wagner defeated Ben Bishop of Lexington 6-4 in the finals. It was the second time he had faced Bishop. Wagner won 2-1 in the previous meeting in the quarterfinals. Defeating the same opponent twice in one day is hard, but Wagner said the second time was easier.

"I was kind of disappointed, but pretty happy with how I finished," he said. "I knew what he was going to do in the second match. I changed some things up and came out more aggressive the second time."

Said Dowell, "I was a little leery about that, but he handled the match better the second time than he did the first."

Champion Ray Rhodes of Toledo Central Catholic downed Wagner 11-1 the semifinals. Wagner then returned the favor with a 16-4 major decision over Groveport Madison's Eric Lintz, setting up the rematch with Bishop.

Kayser shared the same fate as Wagner. In the semifinals, Kayser dropped a 6-5 decision to eventual champion Dennis Karcher of Upper Sandusky. He then pinned Lexington's Bob Hudak in 34 seconds, advancing him to the consolation finals. Shrugging off a nagging back injury, Kayser outlasted Celina's Colby Millen 12-11.

Gutschalk downed Sylvania Southview's Cory Dunlap 10-8 in overtime to finish fifth.

"I would have liked to have scored more points in the beginning of the match," the sophomore said. "I really didn't like going into overtime. It's probably the best I've wrestled in a tournament. It gives me a lot of confidence."

Gutschalk had back-to-back wins before being pinned by Perkins Tony DeMore (2:46). The loss set up his bout with Dunlap.

Pena dropped his opening match, then won four straight matches to get into placement contention.

He decked Jeremiah Fennel of Perkins (:47), and edged Toledo

Central Catholic's Matt Holzaver in overtime, 7-5.

Pena then pinned Lima Shawnee's Jim Ketterer (:56). After the long day, he was able to catch his breath in the finals. Pena took fifth after Ray Rowe of St. Ignatius defaulted.

Said Dowell, "It's probably the toughest tournament that we face during the season. It's good for them. They need that."

Little Giants have won eight straight tournaments

Most of Fremont Ross's varsity wrestlers have recorded almost 20 matches in the season's opening month.

In that grueling span, the Little Giants have enjoyed modest success. But they are coming off a less-than-stellar performance at the 19th Wendy's Invitational last weekend in Tiffin.

Host Ross should regain its confidence when it competes in the 29th annual Mal Mackey Tournament at 10 a.m. today at the Purple Pit.

The Little Giants crowned seven individual champions a year ago en route to their eighth consecutive Mackey title.

Northview, Euclid, Otsego, Perrysburg and Lima Senior return for this year's tournament. Ross won last year by nearly 70 points. The Yellow Jackets and Spartans were second and third, respectively.

Ross will pay close attention to Lima Senior, which joins the Great Lakes League in 2003-2004.

"This will be tougher than last year, but they realize they can do it," Dowell said of his team. "Four teams have already turned in full lineups. In the past, there's been a lot of holes."

Chris Kayser, a 189-pounder, highlights Ross's list of returning placers. The junior is seeking his third consecutive individual title.

Tommy Wagner (152) and Luke Swint (215) are also returning champions. Andrew Legg (171) and Jesse Wukie (135) were runners-up last year, while Mike Shanahan (160) and Jarrod Pena (Hwt.) took third a year ago.

Dowell's squad benefitted from the tough competition a week ago, even if Ross placed only four wrestlers.

"Everybody understands what they have to do now. You can see it in practice," he said. "It's just a matter of focusing in."

Legg, Ross's only undefeated wrestler, will return to the mat after sitting out from a knee injury last week.

A string of eight titles gives the Little Giants some swagger, but it adds pressure. Ross's experience and success in its own tournament should subdue some of that pressure.

But not all of it.

"I put a little pressure on them," said Dowell, the tournament's outstanding coach a year ago. "We won it last year with only one senior, so they seem excited. Plus, many of the wrestlers placed last year."

The Little Giants have only one more double-dual at home. Dowell said his team should thrive in the Purple Pit.

"We don't get that much of an opportunity to wrestle at home, so they're excited about it," he said. "We've had real good fan support all year, and could have even more show up on Saturday."

It was business as usual for the Fremont Ross wrestling team on Saturday.

The Little Giants placed 12 wrestlers and racked up 190 points to claim their ninth consecutive team title at the 29th Mal Mackey Memorial wrestling tournament at the Purple Pit.

Perrysburg was the runner-up with 146.5 points, and Otsego took third with 100 points. Euclid (96) was fourth, Sylvania Northview (85) fifth, Northwood (69.5) sixth, Lima (68) seventh and Bowling Green (50) eighth.

"I thought they performed well as a team. We placed 12 guys, and I thought the tournament was tougher this year," Little Giants head coach Grover Dowell said. "We lucked out."

The Little Giants rolled through the tournament as if they were rolling out a wrestling mat. Ross recorded 17 pins on the day.

Headlining the purple victory parade was 189-pounder Chris Kayser.

He edged Euclid's Steve Dominick 4-0 en route to his third title and a piece of history. There have been only two other three-time champions: Matt McCumber of Rossford and Ross's Brandon Willer. Willer accomplished the feat in 1996.

"I'm real proud of myself for taking it for the third time," Kayser said. "My main goal is to take it for the fourth time."

Kayser's final bout with Dominick was a battle. Both wrestlers worked for offense but found none. Kayser, shrugging off a nagging back injury, led 2-0 entering the final period. He earned one point from a Euclid technical foul — a Rossford coach was charged a one-point foul for questioning the official. The other point came via Dominick's second stalling call.

Two more back points in the closing minute gave Kayser the win, displeasing Dominick.

After the final whistle, he walked off the mat and stormed straight into the stands. Because he refused to return and shake hands after the match, he was charged with flagrant misconduct and stripped of his award and team points. Additionally, he will have to sit out the next two events, and the incident will be reported to the state.

Said Kayser, "He really lost his temper and basically lost it himself."

The weight of the Ross record book was heavy on Kayser. But, like his matches, he found a way to come out on top.

"I was real nervous. I almost went to the bathroom and did the whole puking thing. Once I got on the mat, it went right away," he said.

Ross senior Tommy Wagner (152) made quite an impression with his two matches. He was named the tournament's MVP en route to winning his second consecutive title.

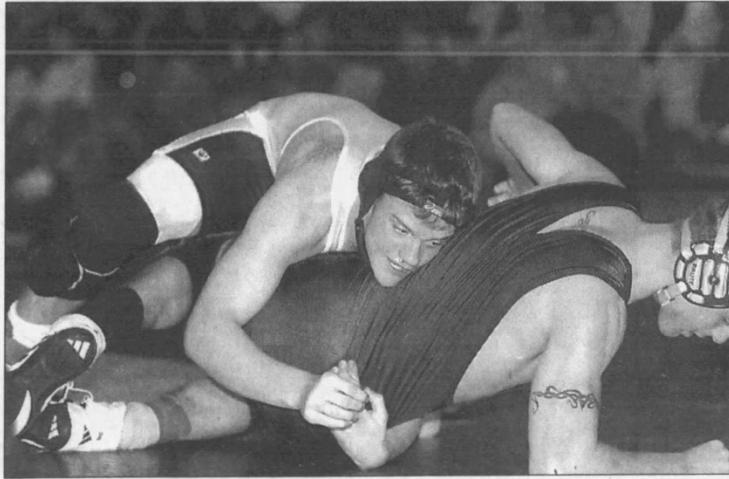

After a first-round bye, he pinned Northview's Kyle Masney (2:51). In the finals, Wagner eked out a 3-1 victory over Garrett Bays of Otsego. Wagner had a tough time with Bays last year during an 8-7 win in the finals.

"He's a tough kid. I got that bulldog in the second period, but I was disappointed I didn't get any back points because time ran out," Wagner said. "Once I got that take-down going into the third period and I was up, I knew then that I had it locked up."

After Wagner, the Little Giants won the next three weight classes. Jesse Wukie (160) followed Wagner's lead. He edged Lima Senior's Cordell Turner 6-5 for his first title.

The senior waited a long time, but it was worth it.

"It's my last year in the Mackey. It was a good way for me to go out," Wukie said. "It's my first year winning it, and it couldn't be any better."

ANDREW LEGG, right, of Fremont Ross takes down Joe D'Amico of Euclid during Saturday's Mal Mackey Memorial tournament at the Purple Pit. Legg won the 171-pound division championship.

To get to the finals, Wukie posted a 16-2 major decision over Northview's Rusty Reinbolt, then pinned Perrysburg's Drew Peat (2:50).

Both Wukie and Andrew Legg (171) improved on runner-up placements a year ago. Legg controlled Euclid's Joe D'Amico for a 15-1 victory in the title match. Legg made it to the finals by pinning Perrysburg's Josh Woods (1:34) and Northwood's John Poddany (3:00).

Austin Earle (140), the Little Giants' first champion, made his way to the finals with back-to-back pins. He decked Gary Osmond of Otsego (1:33), and then pinned Euclid's Scott Sattler (5:00) in the semifinals. In the finals, Earle edged Northwood's Brandon McGaharan, 7-6.

"The kids were ready for it. They really wanted it. I'm pretty much happy with all the kids. They were excited and ready to go," said Dowell, the tournament's most outstanding coach for the second straight year.

Zac Potridge (112) was Ross's lone runner-up. He was pinned by Otsego's Dan Vaillant (3:27) in the finals. The Knights had three individual champions, second only to the Little Giants.

In the semifinals, Potridge posted a 15-9 major decision over DeMar Terrance of Euclid.

A quintet of Little Giants came off the victory podium with third-place medals.

Sam Krueger (103) downed Sylvania Northview's Tom Current 8-4 to secure placement. Krueger beat him 8-0 in the opening round.

Jake Gutschalk (130) pinned Perrysburg's Luke Sundermeier (4:26). Gutschalk also earned a 7-4 victory over Northview's Andy Darr, and pinned Euclid's James Jukiewicz (1:10).

After dropping his semifinal bout to eventual champion Joe Gerwin of Otsego, Myles Porter (145) had two straight pins for third place. He took care of Northwood's Cody Miller (3:59) and Kyle Weekley of Lima (4:32).

Brandon Wolf (215), who filled in for the injured Luke Swint, came away with third place by pinning Bowling Green's Jake Rischel (2:50). Wolf was pinned by Euclid's Myron McConnell (1:56), dropping him into the consolation bracket.

Heavyweight Jarrod Pena also came away with third place after pinning Otsego's Colin Perry (2:10). Pena also pinned Northview's Nick Mucci (52 seconds) to get into the consolation finals.

One Ross wrestler fought hard for fourth place. Jaime Resendez (125) was pinned by Perrysburg's Tony Castillo (2:44) in the consolation finals. He opened the tournament with a 14-12 decision of Northwood's Ian Black, but then lost 15-7 to Sylvania Northview's Ryan Wood. Resendez battled back in the consolation round by pinning Otsego's Josh Bradford (31 seconds).

On Wednesday, the Little Giants travel to Toledo Whitmer for a key Great Lakes League dual.

Giants sweep double-dual, keep GLL hopes alive

One of Fremont Ross's smallest wrestlers came up big Wednesday.

Senior Zac Potridge (112) posted a convincing 16-1 technical fall over Findlay's Troy Gwinn to clinch the Little Giants' 39-27 Great Lakes League victory during a double-dual at the Purple Pit.

Ross (4-1 GLL) also defeated former GLL member Lorain Admiral King 61-22. The Trojans downed Admirals 66-15.

With Ross and Findlay dueling on two mats, the team score went back and forth. The Little Giants led by only four points heading into the 112-pound bout with two matches remaining.

"I knew it was pretty close, but I just went out and did what I had to do. I knew I had to get the most points for my team," Potridge said.

Potridge dominated Gwinn in the first period, taking him down left and right for a 15-1 score. At the start of the second period, he hit a quick switch on the opening whistle for the technical fall.

"I told him we'd have to have a pin," Ross head coach Grover Dowell said. "That's probably the best I've seen him wrestle all year. He was quick and aggressive, but he was still in control."

Ross trails Fostoria by one match in the GLL standings. The Little Giants can make a push for the crown with a strong showing at the league tournament on Feb. 9 at the Purple Pit.

Said Dowell, "That (win over Findlay) really helps. They had to have that to even think of the GLL tournament to make a run. They should feel confident now."

Potridge, who also had a 21-6 technical fall over Admiral King's Chris Johnson, was one of Ross's eight double winners. Sam Krueger (103), Jake Gutschalk (130), Kyle Wensinger (145), Tommy Wagner (152), Jesse Wukie (160), Andrew Legg (171) and Jarrod Pena (275) were the others.

"I thought they were really aggressive. Findlay is a really improved team. And I never expected us to come out as well as we did against King," Dowell said. "I was real happy."

Krueger defeated Findlay's Preston Wray 11-8 and picked up a forfeit. Gutschalk came away with a 4-3 decision over Findlay's Rick Aleski and downed Admiral King's Donny Lipscomb 10-6. Wensinger earned a 11-8 decision over Findlay's Taylor Runyon and pocketed a forfeit.

After Wensinger's victory at 145, Ross would go on to claim the next three weight classes in both matches. Wagner, who had one of eight Little Giant pins, decked Admiral King's Scott Griffith in one minute, 15 seconds. He then defeated Findlay's Noah Williams 13-5. Wukie followed with a pin of Jonathan Lugo of Admiral King (44 seconds), and downed Trojan Bill Seng 8-3.

Legg showed strength with a 21-4 technical fall over Admiral King's Mike Meinhold; he also pinned Findlay's Jeff Thomas (5:58). Pena had the two quickest falls on the night. He pinned Admiral King's Tom Bennett (31 seconds) and Findlay's Brian Polutnik (32 seconds).

The Little Giants also got victories from Austin Earle (140) and Chris Kayser (189) against Admiral King, and a triumph from Kyle Polter (119) against the Trojans.

It had been 14 days since Ross wrestled, and it showed in some wrestlers.

"I was really surprised. It looked like a couple of our kids began to suck wind towards the end of some of the matches. I can't believe that, seeing how hard they work. Maybe we've got to work a little harder," Dowell said.

The Little Giants face Port Clinton and Norwalk in a double-dual on Jan. 30 in Port Clinton.

Ross gets coach his 100th win

Giants split double-dual with Norwalk, Port Clinton

By ALEXIUS TOMASZEWSKI

Staff writer

PORT CLINTON — Fremont Ross wrestling coach Grover Dowell was nervous about Wednesday night's double-dual because his team would forfeit three matches.

He was half right.

The Little Giants edged Port Clinton 39-33 and bowed to Norwalk 37-35 in a non-league double-dual.

The Redskins downed Norwalk 41-32.

Battling an 18-point deficit in each match was challenging enough, but the reward was special for Dowell. The six-point win over the Redskins clinched his 100th career victory.

Dowell, an 11-year veteran, was presented with a plaque by assistant coach Don Wensinger and the Little Giants after match.

"That was one of my personal goals since way back when," Dowell said. "I actually wanted to keep it quiet. It's something I've wanted to do, and the kids helped me out."

Six Ross wrestlers each recorded a pair of wins to help Dowell reach the milestone. Luke Swint (215 pounds) led the way with two pins. Zac Potridge (112), Tommy Wagner (152), Mike Shanahan (160), Andrew Legg (171) and Chris Kayser (189) also notched double victories.

Wagner, a senior, said the team was unaware its coach was on the brink of 100 victories. Wagner said the wrestlers took pride in helping Dowell.

"Once I heard the news that coach got his 100th win, it meant a lot to me personally since I've been here since I was a freshman. He's taught me a lot about the sport and brought me along really well," Wagner said.

Splitting the double-dual had a silver lining for Dowell, who said his team was sluggish.

"I didn't think our kids wrestled up to par," he said. "But when you're sitting there giving up 18 points right off the bat, it really hurts. It think they were drained a little, mentally, from giving up that many points."

Ross forfeited the 125- and 135-pound and heavyweight weight divisions because of various suspensions and injuries.

The Little Giants (7-4-1) tried to make up for the forfeits by getting pins. They had seven on the night. Swint pinned Port Clinton's Justin Kochensparger in one minute, 49 seconds and later pinned Norwalk's Adam Finch (1:37). Wagner pinned Redskin Kyle Bodi in 36 seconds, while Zac Potridge decked Port Clinton's Josh Cornell in 2:39.

Ross's Sam Krueger (103) downed Redskin Ty Nemechek 9-7. Shanahan edged Jason Adkins 16-11, and Kayser followed later with an 8-4 win over Jamie Arthur. Kyle Polter (119) and Legg each had forfeits against the Redskins.

Against the Truckers, Shanahan pinned Rick Gormeck (1:35), and Legg followed by pinning Paul Gardner (1:39). Kayser then pinned Jordan Tkach (1:41). Potridge picked up his second triumph with a 10-4 win over Trucker Tyler Sabatino, and Jake Gutschalk (130) posted a 17-2 technical fall over Robert Osborne.

Ross hosts the Great Lakes League Tournament on Feb 9. The Little Giants, who are second in the standings behind Fostoria, will need to regroup.

"They're going to have to wrestle a lot better than what they did tonight to be able to take that. Hopefully, at that point, we'll be able to fill those three weight classes," Dowell said.
